Theurgy A higher kind of magic is theurgy, which uses rituals, mental imagery and sacred words for the purpose of spiritual evolution.

Common magic (called thaumaturgy) may have similar methods and implements, but its goals are often more worldly. The theurgist attempts to attune to the Divine Intelligence, and to merge his personal will with the Divine Will. On the other hand, the thaumaturgist attempts to effect changes in the physical world for personal gain, in service to his personal will and ego. Theurgy is an important component of certain esoteric traditions, most notably of Martinism.

(above) Hermes Trismegistus is revered as one of the ancient Teachers of the Order. He is often associated with Thoth, the ibis-headed Egyptian god of wisdom, healing, the arts and sciences.

(above right) Hermes Trismegistus' most famous dictum is "As above, so below." This means that when man is able to understand himself, he too shall know the secrets of the universe.

People from all walks of life are welcome to study these under the Order. At present, the members include professionals (doctors, writers, lawyers, IT/computer professionals, teachers, etc.), as well as university students, housewives, grandparents, and people with different religious backgrounds. Their purposes in joining the Order are also often varied, but these can be summed up in one word: advancement.

Teachings and Principles

The Order dispenses teachings from various disciplines which are collectively called the Western Esoteric Tradition. We believe that Truth is not the monopoly of one philosophy or one school of thought. Rather, its essence can be found in most faiths and traditions, hence the eclectic approach adopted by our Order.

Truth may be ubiquitous, yet it cannot be discovered through mere intellectualization. It cannot be known through the mere ingestion of ideas, and it cannot be found in books. Instead, Truth must be seen and experienced first-hand by the seeker. Recognizing this, our Order's methods are not confined to intellectual study and philosophical dissection. We also espouse the practice of safe and time-tested techniques to awaken man's inner faculties. With this awakening, the seeker achieves profound insights into the real nature of himself and the world around him.

This awakening is mainly a spiritual expansion, but it too has practical or mundane benefits. Through the meditative techniques taught in our Order, the practitioner attains robust health, learns the secret art of healing, enhances his mental and psychic abilities, and becomes skilled in actualizing his goals and ambitions. These are all powerful tools that can be used to achieve the mundane goals of life, such as wealth, success, happiness and peace of mind.

The Kabbalah The Kabbalah is believed as one of the highest and most erudite of the ancient sciences. It explains the mechanics of creation, the architecture of the universe, the nature of angels and other beings, and the philosophical meaning of life and existence. The roots of the Kabbalah extend all the way back into the obscure beginnings of humanity.

Rosicrucianism It has been said that Rosicrucianism is the hidden quintessence of Christianity. But Rosicrucianism is actually older, tracing its beginnings to the land of Kham – ancient Egypt. Among the hallmarks of a Rosicrucian are continuous self-improvement through dedicated study, practice and service; the investigation of natural and cosmic laws through experiments; and humanitarian activities.

Martinism Martinism is an initiatory school of philosophy and mysticism whose lineage can be traced to the Knights Templar in the medieval ages, through Charles Stuart (Bonnie Prince Charlie), Papus, Martinez Pasqually and Louis Claude de Saint-Martin. Martinism has close ties to the Masonic and Rosicrucian traditions. Martinism gives emphasis on theurgy as a means to know God.

Alchemy Alchemy is one of the two oldest sciences known to man (the other is astrology). It is the forerunner of chemistry. Superficially, it is concerned with the transmutation of base metals into the highest and purest metal of all – gold, or in the lingo of esotericists, hermetic gold. Our chief concern, however, is with an art called inner alchemy, which aims to transform man into the best, highest and most sublime that he can be.

Mysticism Mysticism deals with the study of man, psychic and spiritual faculties, and his
